Art Center

The Marion Art Center is pleased to announce that its Theater Scholarship was awarded this year to Christopher Black of Mattapoisett. Chris took part in every production of the Young People's Theater for the last four years, and also many of the dramatic presentations at Old Rochester. Chris Plans to continue his education at Syracuse University where he will participate in school theatricals.

The Marion Art Center's Theater Award was given to Ann Worden, who has also been very active in both musicals and drama in the Young People's Theater. The scholarship and award were presented at ORR graduation. Ann also plans to continue her interest in theater in college.

This is the second year the Art Center had given Theater Scholarships and awards. The program was initiated by Nancylee Gaucher, who has directed the Young People's Theater for four years. With financial aid from several area banks, and income from the Young People's Theater productions, we hope it can be a continuing scholarship program. Last year's winner, Chris LeBlanc of Fairhaven, attended the acting school at the University of Southern California. Through an interview set up by his teacher, George Firth, Chris has signed a 7 year contract with Universal Studios. Under Universal's New Talent Department, which had developed such actors as James Caan and Susan St. James, Chris will study and act in small roles.

The Young People's Theater will hold a workshop this summer taught by Kate Benton, and a dramatic production, scheduled for August. Tryouts will be announced.

Pony League

A meeting of interested parents and the Mattapoisett Sports and Athletic Committee on Thursday evening has resulted in plans for developing a Pony League Baseball program in the town this year if enough boys sign up for the program.

Tryouts for the program will be held on Saturday, June 23rd, at 10:00 A.M. The rain date will be Sunday, June 24th, at the same time. Any boy who turns 13 by August 1st of this year will be eligible. Maximum limit for the league will be any boy who is presently a sophomore in high school. No present juniors or seniors will be eligible. The committee also wants to stress the fact that summer residents are also eligible for the program.

Present plans call for the league to begin on July 9th and to conclude on August 24th. It is hoped that four teams will be able to be formed, but if the turnout requires more

Since the tryout date may be earlier than the time when some summer residents are permanently in town for the summer, plans will be made to accommodate late enrollees in the program. League plans call for no new players after July 11th. If there are complete rosters for all teams prior to that time, it may be necessary to close rosters before that time. Summer residents who would like to play should indicate their intentions as soon as possible in order to avoid disappointment. It is the hope of the Sports and Athletic Committee to develop a Pony League program that will be able to operate every summer from now on.

Other outstanding play this week occurred in the Jets vs Brown game. This was a 9-inning thriller with the Jets a 1-0 winner. Outstanding pitching by Chris Carvalho, Skip Harris and Drew Frazee made this a super game.

In an 8th inning effort the Warriors beat the Cardinals 6 to 5. Down by 2 runs Brendon MacDonald's 3 run homer won it all.

"MY LIFE AT SEA"
Captain John Hadley
courtesy of John Hayward

Remained at home about six years. Tried farming. Went to London as General Agent for the N. American Manufacturing Co. That failed and nearly broke met, but returning home I again met Mr. Guion on one of his steamers. I was feeling pretty blue. Mr. Guion encouraged me by saying, "Hadley, we will have a ship for you soon." After spending a few months at home, went to New York, then took command of ship "John Bright" built by Wm. H. Webb, owned by Williams & Guion. Went to San Francisco with general cargo; from there to Callao in ballast; then to Guanape Islands for guano; to New York; then to San Francisco with general cargo, loaded wheat for Havre; then to Liverpool in ballast; to New York with general cargo; again to San Francisco; then to Liverpool with wheat at L4.5. like many others and get ashore," knowing that we would pass near the reefs. At 11 p.m. called all hands to tack ship, had ordered the helm down when we saw breakers broad off the weather bow. Immediately gave orders to put helm hard up and square the yards. The ship fell off before the wind but in a few minutes struck, going off shore, kept pounding, the undertow sweeping her in (the only time I ever knew a ship to go ashore stern first) against a five knot breeze. I was satisfied then, my chart must be wrong, which proved to be. Our boats were provisioned and ready to leave in an hour. Remained as near ship as prudent 'til daylight. It was a sad hour. The old ship had carried me safely many thousand miles. I had made several changes in her for my special comfort. She was in first class order; as it seemed to me, just ready to live and take lots of comfort. Now she was a complete wreck. As I looked back I could see the surf breaking over her deck, her sails fluttering, a picture not to be forgotten.

We left the ship in three boats. During the first day, abandoned one, it being too slow to keep with the others. Divided crew and proceeded third day out. Were picked up by a Brazilian Str. and taken to Pernambuco. Made out protests, etc. Sailed for New York on English Steamer, where we arrived in January. Below I give cause of accident as reported in New York "Maritime Journal".

port, which ran on to Los Rocas off the coast of Brazil on the night of December 10th, 1874, can be traced directly to a gross error in a chart, published by a private English firm, and should prove a warning to ship-masters who trust to such unreliable publications. We have taken some pains to enquire into this case and have compared Capt. Hadley's chart with the ones issued by the U.S. Hydrographic office bureau of Navigation, Washington, beside having obtained full particulars of the disaster and the causes which led to the destruction of this fine ship and her valuable cargo.

"The position was obtained by observation eleven hours prior to her striking on the reefs. The Captain was in the act of hauling up the courses when the ship struck (last sentences wrong - account right top this page, J.E.H.), for by his reckoning she was then ten miles north of the Rocas as laid down on chart, Capt. Hadley being unwilling to cross the parallel of latitude of Rocas in the night, the currents being unreliable. On his chart, which is one published by Alex. Findley & Laurie, London, dated 1869, it placed Los Rocas too far south of their true position by five miles, although the text on chart say 'Los Rocas coral reef and two islets dangerous; position well defined.'"

p.m. experienced a severe earthquake and as reported a big tidal wave. The sea rose to height of thirty feet (but not in a wave); the currents were very irregular, running in great force in one direction; before one could scarcely have time to think, returning; for illustration, a British ship, lying about five hundred yards from the "Jerry", parted both cables, came down upon us, returned to old position, ran into another vessel from which she went up the coast in another course, then went ashore.

The ship "Geneva", Capt. McLoon, loaded and ready to go to sea next morning, lying up the coast some distance north of my ship, parted both cables, stuck on a rock, came down near the "Jerry" and sank. Five ships were a total wreck, twenty-one more or less damaged, leaving only two or three of the fleet uninjured. Mrs. Hadley was with me. I sat by her side reading when the shock occurred. Mrs. H. was very much frightened when it was repeated; my first thought, "God only knows our fate". I kept changing Mrs. Hadley from one part of the ship to another as it seemed safest. After the ship had been struck on the starboard side several times, the accommodation ladder being still intact on the Port, I thought it best to put Mrs. H. into a boat in charge of Second Officer. They went outside of the fleet but within calling distance. Soon after Mrs. Hadley left, a ship came down on our port side, carrying away ladder and boat. A British ship lying just ahead of us, we cut to the water's edge. Fortunately we were larger than those ships that collided with us, so stood the pounding better than some others. It was a terrible night, the darkness almost impenetrable; ships crushing one another, the cries of the people, rocks rolling down the mountain three thousand feet, all combined to make the scene never to be forgotten.

One of the saddest, most heart-rending scenes occurred on the ship "Avonmore", Capt. Corfield. Capt. C., his wife and three children, and Capt. Trick, of the barque Artic (uninjured) were passing a pleasant evening together. Mrs. Corfield sat at the piano singing that dear old song, "Home, Sweet Home", when the calamity occurred. A vessel came broadside crushing down upon the "Avonmore". In a few minutes she filled and sank. Mrs. Corfiled, her two children, servant and Capt. Trick were drowned. Capt. Corfield was picked up with one child. The child died soon after, was buried at Callao. Every effort was made to save the drowning, but the darkness and drifting wreckage made it impossible to do more. On shore the government buildings, wharf, everything except a few huts at the back of the town were destroyed. My papers were all lost, being at the port captain's office. Mrs. Hadley remained in the boat several hours, then went on board a friend's ship, which was well outside the fleet. The 12th, slipped the remaining anchor, towed outside, returned to Callao for repairs. Mrs. Hadley took steamer for Panama en route for home, the same Capt. Hall commanding, whom you (Capt. Candage) have made special mention of in one of your articles published in the Brookline Chronicle.

In Callao I received great kindness from my old friend, Mr. M.P. Grace, whom I had known from a boy, often visiting him at his home years ago. I had met his elder brother, Mr. Wm. R. Grace, at the Chinchas. In later years have visited them in their New York homes, always finding them most genial and hospitable. Remained in Callao until November; sold the ship, still retaining command. Sailed for Huannillos, arriving the 25th. When I left there for repairs, had in 1000 tons guano, part of which I disposed of at Callao; finished loading, and sailed for Liverpool via Queenstown for orders February 7, 1878.

earthquakes were frequent; often you could feel the mountain shake and see the rocks tumbling down. One shock was quite as severe as the first (May 9th), but no disturbance of the water.

Arrived at Liverpool May 19th; the weather being very thick and a heavy gale, were not able to make Queenstown. Proceeded direct to Liverpool, discharged cargo, ballasted, sailed for New York August 29th.

Mrs. Hadley being dangerously ill, I gave up command of ship. So ended my sea life at the age of sixty-one, having commanded thirty-six years with the exception of about five years when I tried making a living among land sharks, but they bit too hard for an old salt - had to take to the water again. Since August, 1878, have been safely moored in the little town of "Marion-by-the sea."

I have written this short sketch of my sea life at the request of my esteemed friend, Capt. R.G.F. Candage, Brookline, Mass.

Joseph E. Hadley.

All present enjoyed dancing to the Hawaiian songs called by Walt Minnick of Rochester. The hall was beautifully decorated in a Polynesian motif by a hard working team which included high man (on a ladder) Steve Scanlon from Marion and his sister Anne Scanlon, formerly of Marion. The group was treated to a hot and cold buffet which Ken Jensen from Mattapoisett and a culinary arts student at Old Colony Voke garnished with his very clever miniature palm trees made from a fresh carrot, pineapple leaves and black olives. Life Support Tobey Hospital is offering another in a series of Basic Life Support Courses at the Wareham Fire Station on the evenings of June 13, 14 and 15 from 6:30 to 9:30 P.M. This nine hour course, which is taught by instructors certified by the American Heart Association, is open to members of the community as well as hospital personnel.

Basic Life Support, also called CPR, includes those emergency measures to be applied when an infant, child, or adult suddenly stops breathing and his heart ceases beating. It also teaches the proper techniques to be used in aiding a choking victim.

In recent years, the public has expressed a great interest in learning CPR skills. To keep abreast of the newest methods, persons who wish to maintain these skills are urged to attend recertification courses on an annual basis.

For further information on the June sessions, please call Mrs. Mascott at Tobey Hospital, 295-0880.
